CHAPTER I'S NEWSLETTER

November 2014

BOB AND BECKY'S PAGE

How's it going--good?? DON'T FORGET OUR CHAPTER I GATHERING WILL BE ONE WEEK LATER DUE TO THE OFFICERS MEETING. WE WILL MEET AT RYANS NOVEMBER 15th-regular time. Been a pretty busy fall, we want to thank Rob and the Harfords and whoever else done the October gathering while we were on vacation with Ken & Pearl McKinley in Myrtle Beach, S.C. The colors were beautiful on our way down, esp. through West Virginia and Virginia. It was a little cool and damp when we left, but it brought the colors out real bright. We met up with a Barry Monaco from Chapter J, Myrtle Beach the Friday eve. at supper before we left. We exchanged emails and he snapped a few pictures of us and our trikes. We are to look him up when we get back down his way. Chapter J sounds similar to Chapter I with the amount of trikes and bikes and members at chapter gatherings. The Sunday after we got back we met up with Charlie & Nancy Lantz and headed up to Chapter C3 fundraiser. It is always lots of fun up there with Dave & Barb Hicks and there members. The leaf ride on the 25th was a pleasant, sunny day. There weren't too many bright leaves but some still had some color. We rode to the covered bridge below Jug Run. There were 6 bikes total and then we all headed up to Rob & Sue Jesters and met up with other members for a wiener roast. Thanks Rob & Sue for having us!! Good time for all!

Wow, what a great turn-out for road kill stew!!! We want to THANK all Chapter I members who pitched in and really helped out to make it go good. Can't say enough about all the work that was done by everybody, putting tables up and down, the kitchen help, and the auction help. A special THANKS goes out to Roy & Jan Viall for there work and material for the auction. The last count we had, 124 present from 13 different chapters plus Ohio State Directors, Rudy & Linda Copeland and some of his staff, including our own ADDNC, Dave & Sally Slonaker. Becky was disappointed that she couldn't be there, but she is very much on the mend now. Veterans Day is November 11th-if you get the chance, thank a veteran for there service. Don't forget December 6th is our Chapter I Christmas Party. All the information is in the flyer in this newsletter. Also the Salvation Army has asked us to ring the bell again at the Millersburg Walmart from 5-9 on November 28th., the Friday after Thanksgiving. I hope we can get a good turn-out for this again this year. Thanksgiving is coming up, so we want to wish everyone a Happy Thanksgiving and when you read Nancy, our sunshine ladies article, be sure to keep the people she mentioned in your thoughts and prayers.

Panic Situations

Talking to yourself can keep you alive

By: James R. Davis

Throughout the set of articles I have written here there is a clear message, often repeated - you should practice, practice, practice.

Having some confidence in the merits of the material that you have read here, I suspect that most of you accept the premise that practice is worthwhile because it tends to convert what is otherwise difficult to 'doable with some facility' (meaning that as a result of practice you will have the skill and confidence to know that you CAN do whatever has to be done, quickly and without error.) Further, it teaches both our muscles and our minds how to do things in a way that requires very little thought, very little lost time 'finding' the appropriate controls, and just how much force is required when using those controls. In other words, practice allows us to accomplish what must be done without the loss of time and control that would occur should you simultaneously have to learn how when that panic situation presents itself to you.

So, is that all there is to it? Are you assured that if you practice enough you will be ready to do whatever it takes while your body fills itself with adrenaline?

Surprisingly, the answer is both yes and no. You will be READY (and able) to do what must be done, but what you have not practiced is dealing with that adrenaline. You, normally, do not place yourself in situations where panic stops are required in order to save your life when you practice. Indeed, when you practice you should do so in the safest environment possible so that mistakes can be learned from rather than put you in the morgue.

In the real world there is a requirement that you build a bridge from the theoretical to the actualization of your training. Let me give you an example of what I'm trying to get at here: You are rounding a right-hand curve and see that a vehicle is coming towards you in the opposite lane. That vehicle looks like it might be hugging the center line. It has your attention! Indeed, you are target fixated on it!! What do you do about it?

You have learned that motorcycles tend to go where you are looking. You have experienced that phenomenon many times. You know that target fixation can kill you, again, because your motorcycle tends to go where you are looking. So, why are you target fixated? You know better.

Virtually all of your driving experience has been 'practice' in this case. You know that unless you change the focus of your fixation away from the threat and towards an escape route you are likely to steer right into that oncoming vehicle. But as soon as you realized that you were fixated on that vehicle your body started to manufacture a ton of adrenaline and pump it into your bloodstream. You have started a 'fight or flight' panic attack.

If you need to do to get out of trouble is to TALK TO YOURSELF! You need to say something like: 'I need to look where I want to go. Look away from that truck. That direction is where I want to go. Come on, baby, let's go that way!'

Dumb, right? Well, it doesn't matter what words you use when talking to yourself. What matters is that you tell yourself to do what has to be done. That kicks in the lessons learned from all your prior practice and the job gets done.

Ron Harford

rlharford@embarqmail.com

In the case study found elsewhere on this site you will see an example of how this has saved my bacon any number of times in the past. I was driving immediately behind another rider who, as a result of target fixation, had a catastrophic accident. I had a passenger on my bike at the time and, among other things, I resorted to telling myself: "Control stop this baby!" The result, a smooth but rapid stop that avoided losing control (no locked brakes). Plenty of adrenaline was running its course and trying to get in the way. No time to learn how to stop quickly. Practice had prepared me, and all I needed was that little bridge - a brief chat with myself that insisted that I DO SOMETHING that had to be done, NOW!

Practice is fundamentally important, and so is dealing with the adrenaline that tends to confuse. No need to argue with yourself. Just a quick chat that starts the activity. Muscle memory and familiarity gets the job done from there.

Simple Breakfast Dish

(Submitted by Ron Marcinko)

I cooked up 5 extra thick bacon slices, crumbled when cool
About half of a roll of sausage, browned and crumbled
Buttered my cast iron skillet, think it's a 10 inch skillet, but you can use any oven safe baking dish and placed a roll of Grands biscuits in the dish somewhat tight so they were touching. Sprinkle the sausage and bacon over the biscuits. Scramble between 4-6 eggs and pour mixture over the biscuits. Bonus idea here, add onions, peppers, mushrooms or any other veggies you wish. Grate your favorite cheese over the mixture and bake at 350 for around 30 minutes. Time from start to finish was about an hour and it should feed 4 people.

NANCY'S PAGE

Nancy Lantz, "Sunshine Lady"

Greetings to our Goldwing family. Yep it's coming turkey time and guess who's the big "turkey"? Yep, you got it right as time has flown past me. There have been many things happening since our last newsletter and gathering. But as we turn those clocks back we'll soon be honoring our VETERAN'S who have served our country, then next comes THANKSGIVING of which, we can be thankful for many things -- the good and the bad. Let us say a few prayers to the following Goldwing family:

Mary Stewart and family -- the passing of Mary's daughter Carolyn Roesch -- Hip replacement and a questionable stomach problem -- recovery at Kingston Ashland

Carl Burchfield --- Having therapy after his knee surgery

Helen Burchfield -- Working with getting her back pain relieved.

Dave Martin -- who has been approved and on a waiting list for a heart transplant Rob Jester -- had his drainage procedure and will be going back in a week to have another Shorty's surgery went well and he'll be coming home Wed. or Thur., depending on the doctor Went in around close to noon and out a little after 3. You don't need to put that in the newsletter, this information was for your knowledge Audene Zimmerman -- will soon be having a hip replacement -- she's looking forward to no more pain Becky Benjamin -- just learned she's not feeling well -- wishing her a speedy recovery. "Well wishing" prayer's for all listed and any who may have some aches and or pains which have been hidden.

Do remember the date of the next gathering will be Nov. 15th due to the fall officer's meeting.
